About

(Cut down on size of menu. Many of the items on their current menu could be further subcategorized into these categories.

Menu slides into the screen from the right, doesn't take up whole page.)

(I wanted space for announcements and events, as that seems to be what they use their home page for already. I have kept this theme for the tablet and desktop wireframes as well.

I chose the title "announcements" since many of the items on their home page were just small pieces of information they wanted to share, rather than whole news articles. This could always be changed later on, however.

I included links to the news and events pages on mobile, tablet, and desktop, in case there is more news that will not fit on the home page.)

(Links that I felt were less important and not necessary for the main menu I placed in the footer. I included a link to "sign up for our newsletter" because that was a prominent link on their home page, so I figured it would be important for them to include it somewhere on the new home page.)
