

(Hero image for features section, as it is visually pleasing and trendy these days.

I suggested that this area could also be used to showcase student work. I actually really appreciate how the current site encourages the Yale community to interact with the site, and how it can bring up discussions of what is "good" or "bad" art and design. It seems very appropriate for an art school.

Perhaps dedicating a section of the site to this would keep some of that spirit alive, while having a more usable and professional looking site.)
